Sometime off in the far distant future, the Art World will revisit Emil's Catalog of Doddles and utter words not spoken within his lifetime: "Not bad for crazy doddles of that make believe land he called the Multiverse..."

Trust me! It may well come to pass much as in his generation, Van Gogh was much better known as a mad kook who was most famous for cutting off his ear than he was ever was for those weirdo paintings that somehow didn't get thrown out by the nurses in old age home after he died.

Remember the story - it was all in the newspapers of the time.

Please don't ask me what a newspaper is? That would take much too long and it would be faster to visit his website for more details.

Any which way you want to look at it, Emil might well fit into a 20-21st Century copycat of this Van Gogh Weirdo as Emil is almost to the level of weirdness although, (to this point in time) he maintains both ears and his nose.

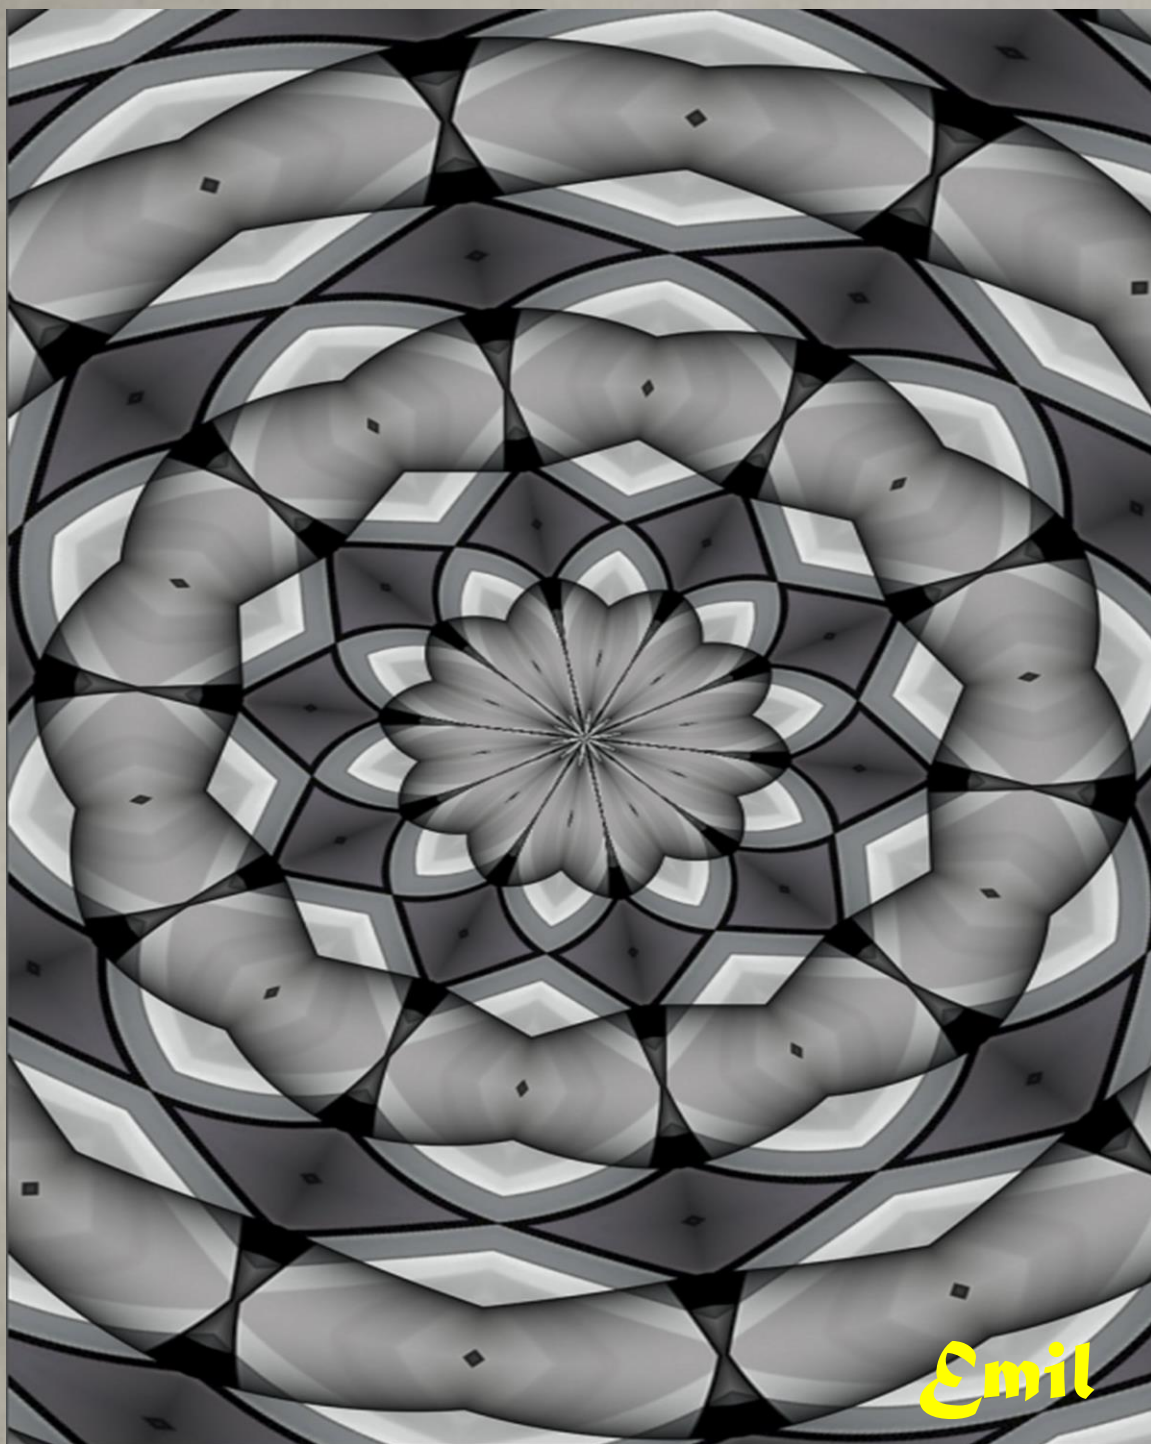

You and me will (regrettably for us here at WWWG) not live to see that occur - just wishful thinking on the part of my accountant department.

Hopefully, all of Emil's little nerdy cadre will come back for these second helpings of Emil's obsession with postcards and the multiverse but, please (whatever you do) don't ask him about that Guru

Shara or else we will get another three books on her 'life and times" running from DARPO - or as Emil tells it.

Luckily, Emil's narrative has gone missing in the mail or so, DHL tells our mail room and it was too long for Emil to telex us from his local Western Union Office; while sad and
